The flu fighters

Continued from Pg. 5

Snow penis

If you or someone you know is struggling with anxiety, visit the Rowan University Wellness Center at Winans Hall or call 856-256-4333.

For comments/questions about this story, email editor@thewhitonline.com or tweet @thewhitonline.

No one wants to be sick, especially on a college campus where viruses can spread like wild- fire. But with proper precau- tions, you can help reduce the spread and keep our campus healthy.

In recent years, the desire to be the first to break a story has trumped being right.

In light of recent events, the desire to be the first to break a story has trumped being right.

next issue.

Because The Whit could not find it, we had to check. Turns out, we made a good decision.

In recent years, the de- sire to be the first to break a story has trumped being right.

The mentality has changed. If we’re wrong, we’ll just retract it. Un- til then, we’ll get a lot of hits on the page.

This health saga is bound to "if we're wrong, we'll just retract it. Un- til then, we’ll get a lot of hits on the page." But this health saga is bound to denies the claims. Will this lazy report ing ever end, or will the increasing social media presence by news organi- zations change the way we do things?

This question can only be answered with one, but one thing’s for sure — when we decided to become journalists, we weren’t planning to pub- lish first, we were planning to publish the truth.

For comments/questions about this story, email editor@thewhitonline.com or tweet @thewhitonline.

We fight, we cry, we say things we don’t mean. In the end, we will always love each other.

Although I was not with my family, I knew they were with each oth- er. I felt their presence in my heart and was in constant communica- tion with each of them.

Although things worked out, and I am incredibly relieved that they did, I understand that all of us, as a family, will face any possible downfall together.

We do not always no- tice how much variations pass by in just a day, what can happen in just a minute. Anything you put aside may be left there for good. There is no time to waste.

No one wants to be sick, especially on a college campus where viruses can spread like wild- fire. But with proper precau- tions, you can help reduce the spread and keep our campus healthy.

In recent years, the desire to be the first to break a story has trumped being right.

next issue.

Because The Whit could not find it, we had to check. Turns out, we made a good decision.

In recent years, the de- sire to be the first to break a story has trumped being right.

The mentality has changed. If we’re wrong, we’ll just retract it. Un- til then, we’ll get a lot of hits on the page.

This health saga is bound to "if we're wrong, we'll just retract it. Un- til then, we’ll get a lot of hits on the page." But this health saga is bound to